THE UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA STAFF BULLETIN

EDMONTON 7, ALBERTA

FEBRUARY 4, 1971

Once a student, always a student, one might remark, having seen the dutiful scribes above, at the teach-in on Canadian nationalism last week. Speakers JAMES LAXER, below left, of Queen's University, a contender for the leadership of the New Democratic Party; HU HARRIES, centre, Member of Parliament for Edmonton Strathcona and former Dean of Commerce at the University, and MEL WATKINS, right, of the University of Toronto, dealt with the old adages of "branch plant economy" and "multi-national corporations."

CONSTRUCTION REPORT

Progress has been slow on most University construction projects, thanks to several patches of nasty weather. According to the January progress report of the Campus Development Office, Basic Medical Sciences, the Law Centre, Car Park II, and the utilities projects all are behind schedule, though it is hoped that better progress will be made with the coming of more moderate temperatures.

The Basic Medical Sciences Building, scheduled for completion next November, is about eight weeks behind. Progress has been slowed by problems of cement pouring and inadequate temporary heat, so that even the enclosed portions of the building are very cold.

The Law Centre is proceeding well in the two-thirds of the building which are heated, but less well in the north section where concrete pouring has been delayed. Concrete work could be finished in a month given good weather conditions. The Centre is scheduled for completion by the end of July.

The lower east half of the second Car Park has been completed and parking spaces provided for about one hundred cars. Work on the remaining structure is proceeding slowly and the project is some eleven months behind schedule.

Generally, the utilities projects are behind their schedules, except the final two phases of the Utilities Services Tunnel, in the vicinity of the Education Building and the Henry Marshall Tory Building. These final sections of the tunnel are expected to be finished in late summer. The two sections of phase IIC of the tunnel are showing poor progress. These sections, one along 112 Street past St. Stephen's College and the other extending down 114 Street from the Administration Building, were scheduled for completion by May 6. Now the project is not expected to be finished until July 31 or later. Phase IIB of the tunnel, roughly in the region of the Rutherford Library, is awaiting milder weather to complete refilling the excavation.

Negotiations with bidders are under way for the Fine Arts and Humanities Buildings.

Tenders have been called for Phase II of the Engineering Centre and will be called for Chemistry II in mid-February. The Humanities and Social Sciences Library and Education II are in late planning stages; in earlier stages are the Business Administration and Commerce Building, Agriculture II, Household Economics II, and the North Garneau Food Services facility.

This absorbed dancer is one of nearly fifty singers, actors, dancers, and musicians who are warming up for an original rock musical, The Commontree, to be presented by Jubilaires in SUB Theatre February 11, 12, 13, 18, 19, and 20.

EXPROPRIATION COMPENSATION STUDY

A working paper on the subject of compensation for expropriated land has been issued by the Institute of Law Research and Reform. Interested persons and organizations are being asked for comments on the proposals presented in the paper.

The paper suggests that the owner should be paid market value for his land plus compensation for "disturbance." This includes moving and relocation costs, with an automatic payment of five per cent of total value to a homeowner. In some cases "a home for a home" is recommended. Where only part of his land is taken, the paper suggests the owner be paid for the resulting loss in value to the remainder.

The paper deals with the special problems of leased and mortgaged property, well sites, power and pipeline rights of way, and strip mining. It makes provision for interest as well as for costs to be paid to expropriated owners so that lack of funds will not keep them from receiving fair treatment.

Later this spring, the Institute will issue a further working paper which will cover expropriation procedures. When all comments and suggestions have been received, the Institute will make a final report with recommended reforms both on compensation and on expropriation procedure. Copies of the working paper are available upon written application to the Institute of Law Research and Reform, The University of Alberta.

The Institute is a body set up by The University of Alberta, the provincial government and the Law Society. Its purpose is to encourage research into law and to make proposals for reform. W. F. BOWKER, Q.C., formerly Dean of Law at the University, is Director of the Institute and H. G. FIELD, Q.C., of Edmonton, is Chairman of the Board. The four-year-old Institute has issued reports on crimes compensation, age of majority, liability of occupiers of real property, and the guarantees acknowledgement act. Projects in progress include a proposal for a unified Family Court, other family law subjects, and assignments of wages.
